Restaurant Review: Six Feet Under is a fantastic seafood restaurant disguised as a down-home pub. There's a huge seafood menu covering everything from fried to steamed to stewed. If you love shellfish, don't miss out on the dinners served in a "bucket." The freshest shellfish is steamed to perfection with a hint of Old Bay, and chorizo sausage, corn on the cob, and new potatoes are thrown in as well. There's also a great bar with a lot of brews on tap. Weather permitting we'll sit outside on the upper deck.
